

Subject: 23cvd845 - Cory Vaillancourt 50-c, continued again (and again, and again...).

For the second time in my entire life, I saw Cory Vaillancourt in a coat and tie (not a suit) when he appeared in court today. If nothing else, Terry Ramey is getting this guy cleaned up.

The following is a log of what transpired in court today.

[Editor's Note: Zeb Smathers made it a point to come over to me and comment on UF's win over Tennessee last weekend.]

Becky Johnson covering the case. Let's see if anything about this ever appears in the mountaineer.

Cory Vaillancourt represented by Mark Melrose. Very interesting conversations when Judge Ali Paksoy dialoged with Mark Melrose and Terry Ramey, who was representing himself. Included -

- Discussion about continuing the case. Settling on a date - who is the Judge. Melrose indicated there is not a judge in the county that will touch this case. (Clerks laughed).
- Judge Paksoy dialoged with Terry Ramey on a variety of topics, discovery, Fred Moody passing away, not receiving material from Terry's Subpoena, including never getting the video of Cory recording of Terry, procedural steps for next hearing, etc...
- Date finally decided of October 27, 2023, a Friday. Clerks looked busy coming up with a new date, because it had to be a traveling judge.
- The judge encouraged Terry if there were any date conflicts with Commissioner Ramey and the new hearing date, that he talk directly with Melrose, and instructed Melrose to accommodate Terry.

The traveling judge scheduled for the October 27, 2023 hearing will be Judge Warren Hughes.
